BRANDING

5th May

*"A brand is the
intangible sum
of a product's
attributes."*

David Ogilvy

"Branding is the process of connecting good strategy with good creativity."

Marty Neumeier

Brand:

The perception people hold of a company, product, or service.

Branding:

The intentional process of shaping and expressing that perception.

Branding is crucial for businesses because it:

1. Establishes a unique identity that differentiates the brand.

2. Builds customer recognition and loyalty.

3. Expresses the brand's values, personality, and promise.

4. Attracts and retains customers through emotional connection.

5. Enhances business value through reputation and market position.

Brand architecture is a strategic framework that organises and defines the relationships between a company's core values, personality traits, brand essence, and attributes.

It ensures consistency and clarity across all brand elements, guiding how the brand communicates its identity and connects with its audience.

Emotional branding requires conceptual precision

BRAND POSITIONING

For individuals who value innovation and premium design, Apple offers cutting-edge technology products that are intuitive and elegantly designed, setting the standard for the industry.

For athletes in need of high-performance gear, Nike delivers innovative athletic footwear and apparel that inspires and enables peak performance.

For people seeking refreshment, Coca-Cola offers a wide range of beverages that deliver happiness and enjoyment, bringing people together.

Brand Personality.

Effort to define the brand's character, tone, and style, making it relatable and memorable to consumers.

By attributing human traits to a brand, companies can create a distinct identity that resonates emotionally with their target audience, fostering loyalty and differentiation from competitors.

Jungian archetypes

Universally recognised character types derived from Carl Jung's psychological theories, used to create distinct brand identities that resonate deeply with consumers. These archetypes embody fundamental human motivations and traits, helping brands connect emotionally with their audience by reflecting familiar and relatable personas.

Compass

Brand Purpose

The reason for a brand's existence beyond making money.

It reflects the brand's values and its commitment to making a positive impact on the world.

A strong brand purpose inspires both employees and customers by aligning with their own values and aspirations.

Having a clear brand purpose is vital because:

It differentiates your brand in a crowded market.

It builds deeper emotional connections with customers.

It motivates and engages employees.

It enhances brand loyalty and trust.

It can lead to long-term business growth and success.

To accelerate the
world's transition
to sustainable energy.

The image features a scenic landscape of snow-capped mountains under a sunset sky, with a river flowing through a valley in the foreground. The Patagonia logo, consisting of the word "patagonia" in a white, lowercase, sans-serif font, is prominently displayed across the middle of the image. A registered trademark symbol (®) is located to the upper right of the word. Below the logo, the tagline "To save our home planet by inspiring and enabling people to live more sustainably." is written in a smaller, white, sans-serif font. The entire composition is set against the backdrop of the mountain landscape, which is partially obscured by the text. A yellow geometric shape is visible in the bottom right corner of the image.

Roadmap

Brand Mission

A concise statement that defines the fundamental role of the brand in the marketplace. It outlines what the brand aims to achieve and how it plans to accomplish it.

To organise the world's information and make it universally accessible and useful for all.

STARBUCKS COFFEE

To inspire and nurture the human spirit –
one person, one cup, and one
neighbourhood at a time.

Crafting a Mission Statement:

Define Objectives:
What are the primary goals of
your brand?

Identify Core
Activities: What key
actions will you
take to achieve
these goals?

Highlight Unique
Value: What makes your approach or
offerings unique?

Destination

Brand Vision

A long-term strategic statement that defines the broader impact a brand aspires to have on the world and its community. It goes beyond the brand's internal goals and focuses on the positive changes it aims to bring about in society, the environment, and the lives of its customers.

Brand Vision

Positive Change: The specific societal, environmental, or cultural improvements the brand aims to contribute to.

Community Focus: How the brand envisions its role in supporting and enriching the communities it serves.

Sustainability and Responsibility: Commitments to ethical practices, sustainability, and corporate social responsibility.

Inspiration and Empowerment: How the brand intends to inspire and empower its customers and stakeholders to make a difference.

Long-Term Impact: The enduring legacy the brand seeks to leave through its actions and initiatives.

To create a better
everyday life for the
many people by making functional
design accessible.

Brand Challenge

Despite Médecins Sans Frontières' (MSF's) strong performance, the brand lacks a clearly defined and salient positioning in the Australian giving sector, limiting its ability to gain and maintain donor relationships or cut-through in times of crisis.

Heightened exposure to crisis appeals is making it harder for donors to navigate the giving space.

Audience Truth

Heightened exposure to crisis situations and urgent appeals is creating a feeling of helplessness as people contend with their own limits to take effective action.

Pushing the limits of effective action to help those with the greatest need.

POSITIONING AND CVP FRAMEWORK

Creative Extension Brief: From Proposition to Idea

Now that you've crafted a strong insight and proposition, your next challenge is to bring it to life through a creative idea — one that can drive powerful, memorable execution across channels.

Your task is to develop:

1. A Creative Platform or Idea:

A big, campaignable thought that brings your proposition to life emotionally and distinctively. It should be flexible enough to work across touchpoints but tight enough to feel ownable by Airbnb.

2. Examples of Creative Execution:

Show us how the idea behaves in the world. This could include hero film, social content, OOH, product experience, or unexpected earned or participatory ideas — whatever best expresses the insight. Be inventive.
